Bigger group work. Mostly on Fridays
I liked how we did group projects in class that helped us understand the stuff we learned. I also like how the homework gave us multiple tries for questions.
Always available to meet outside of class for extra help.
I liked the organization of having guided notes given to us each class, so we knew exactly what to write down and where. Mr. C always very carefully went through the notes, giving us time to ask questions when we needed it. I also like how he was always willing to improve his teaching methods, especially when he incorporated more group work into class when we had suggested it to him. Mr. C really cares about his students and does everything to make sure we do well in his class!
Very engaging and helpful during group work if we were confused, wrote everything on the board, provided guided notes, gave us homework that helped make sure we were understanding the content more thoroughly.
Showed lots of enthusiasm for the subject despite me personally finding Econ boring myself, but his enthusiasm made me least want to try and learn. Guided notes were very helpful and made it so I wasn't lost during a lecture.
Completing physical in-class note sheets are very helpful in learning and understanding the material.
a lot of homework and smart book and extra help

More study guides and practice tests instead of long lists of homework numbers
I think we could have done more different lesson plans, usually the class was lectures with some group activities.
Mr. C was sometimes a little hard to understand when he was teaching. I also wish he sometimes explained the graphs we learned more in depth because sometimes they were very complicated.
I don't really have any suggestions.
Sometimes it is hard to understand what he is saying because of his accent which can make it hard to comprehend what he is trying to teach.
maybe extra slides that are a very basic overlay of what is taught in class
